Success Story

on Livelihood interventions under Gram Parivartan Project

Pynkhreh Syih, around 50 years old, lives in Shymplong village with her husband and their three children (two daughters and one son). The family's main sources of income are wages from NREGA, livestock rearing, and ration from PDS. Pynkhreh has been raising pigs for fattening and selling them for meat, but due to lack of expertise and frequent disease outbreaks, her earnings were limited, preventing her from fully realizing the potential of this activity.

During a mobilization drive under the Gram Parivartan project in 2023-24, the VDF selected her for support with a Piggery Breeding Unit and poultry rearing. She received training in piggery farming and financial assistance to purchase two piglets. After receiving proper training, Pynkhreh cared for the pigs well, and in June, her sow gave birth to nine healthy piglets, all of which survived until weaning. She sold seven piglets at Rs. 4500 each, earning an additional income of Rs. 31,500. The remaining piglets are being raised to expand the breeding unit.

In addition, Pynkhreh sold two grown pigs for meat, earning Rs. 35,000. With the support and techniques, she learned through DBF's training, Pynkhreh is now confident in continuing the activity and growing her pig herd, ensuring a sustainable income for her family.
